

Universal Avionics Systems Corporation and Navtech/EAG sign Service Agreement for Navigation Data Updates

Tucson, November 18, 2008 – Universal Avionics and Navtech/EAG have agreed to build a business co-operation and signed a Service Agreement for Navigation Data Updates that enables Navtech\EAG to market their Navigation Data product directly to customers with UASC Flight Management Systems onboard their aircraft.

Iain Millan, Managing Director, EAG UK Ltd said "Navtech/EAG were one of the first companies in the world to produce Navigation Data for Flight Management Systems since the earliest onboard computers came into being at the beginning of the seventies. We are very excited to have this opportunity to do business with Universal Avionics and add them to our list of major OEM's that are already in our portfolio. It also gives us the leverage to move into markets that were previously out of reach enabling Navtech/EAG to serve our customers better. We look forward to a long and fruitful relationship."

Dan Reida, VP Sales and Marketing, UASC, states "We take pride in offering a host of products and services that meet the specific needs of each individual customer, whether it is a WAAS/SBAS Flight Management System which we offer in several configurations, or in a navigation data supplier. We welcome this opportunity to work with a fine organization such as Navtech/EAG."
